

This week pupils have been learning about Holocaust Memorial day in assembly. As we mark Holocaust Memorial Day, we pause to remember the six million Jewish people and the many others who suffered and died. It is a moment that invites us, as a Catholic school community, to reflect on the sacred dignity of every human person—each created in the image and likeness of God.

This day reminds us of the consequences of prejudice, hatred, and indifference. It challenges us to help our children grow as people of compassion, courage, and justice. By teaching them to stand up for what is right, to notice when someone is left out, and to value the differences in others, we honour the memory of those whose voices were silenced.

May this day inspire us to be instruments of peace in our homes, our school, and our wider community. And may we work together to build a world where love triumphs over hatred and hope lights the way forward. Mrs Whitten, Headteacher

>>> PUPILS OF THE WEEK*Cycle 2 Week 4*Olly Carr (9A)

Olly's standard of work in History has improved tremendously this week, as has his attitude for learning. His work this week is a prime example of how St Aidan's promotes high standards both in presentation and quality. Keep this up!

Cycle 2 Week 5Oliver Cottam (8F)

Excellent presentation delivered confidently to 11 of his peers at Classics Club. The presentation was not only informative but delivered with real confidence and enthusiasm. Oliver should be really proud of himself, both for his oracy skills and ability to answer a range of complex questions to peers. Excellent demonstration of independent learning. Well done Oliver!

Aidan Mason (10A).

For his leadership skills at the end of the school day supporting at the bus stop and ensuring members of the public accessed the bus first! The lady was really impressed with his conduct - she was very impressed with how the boys had conducted themselves - especially Aidan. Well done Aidan.

>>> YEAR 11 AND YEAR 13 MOCK EXAMS

Year 11 and Year 13 have worked incredibly hard over the past two weeks as they completed their mock examinations, demonstrating focus, resilience, and maturity throughout the process.

This period has provided pupils with a valuable opportunity to experience the structure and pace of formal exams while identifying their strengths and areas for development ahead of the summer. Their determination during this busy time has been impressive, and the completion of the mocks marks a significant milestone as we now begin the countdown to the real exams.

As pupils continue to revise and build on what they’ve learned, we encourage them to keep giving their best effort—every bit of hard work at this stage will make a real difference when they reach the summer exams. Pupils will receive their mock results on Tuesday, February 10th.

>>> READING IN 2026

CATHOLIC LIFE

Our pupils have made a strong start to reading in 2026!

In Mr Rathore's class, students have started Malorie Blackman's 'Boys Don't Cry' – a powerful and thought-provoking novel that explores themes of responsibility, family, and resilience. The story follows Dante, a teenager whose life takes an unexpected turn. It's a gripping read that sparks important conversations about growing up and facing challenges head-on.

Meanwhile, our Sixth Form mentors have been sharing their love of reading with our new Year 7s. A huge thank you to Ethan and Layla for finding time in your busy schedules to inspire our younger readers – your support makes a real difference!

This week has been a particularly musical one!

A group of Year 10 students visited St Anthony's to take part in a classical singing workshop, delivered by the Samling Institute for Young Artists. The session offered students a valuable insight into the world of professional vocal performance and training.

The workshop began with students watching live masterclasses featuring current students from the Samling Institute, giving them a clear sense of the high standards and dedication involved in classical singing. They then learned about correct breathing techniques for singers, focusing on posture, breath control and vocal support. This was followed by energetic vocal warm-ups and the chance to sing together in a three-part round, encouraging teamwork, listening skills and confidence.

To conclude the session, students were treated to two professional operatic performances: a beautifully expressive Irish folk song and a powerful aria from La Bohème. The performances brought the techniques discussed earlier in the workshop to life and demonstrated the emotional impact of classical singing.

The students thoroughly enjoyed the experience and left the workshop feeling motivated and inspired to continue developing their singing in the future.

“Singing is not about perfection, it is about expression.” (Anonymous)

“The voice is the most expressive instrument there is.” (Renée Fleming)

Three Days of Inspiration at Newcastle University

Last week, pupils from Ashbrooke House, Corby House and Brookfield House had the incredible opportunity to spend three days immersed in university life at Newcastle University, hosted by Dr Kelsey and the School of Arts and Culture. Each group explored a different strand of the creative and communications industries, coming away inspired, curious, and more confident about their futures.

Across the three days, pupils experienced a wide range of lectures and activities. Ashbrooke House began with campus exploration and academic sessions, including a lecture delivered by a St Aidan's alumnus. A standout moment was visiting King's Hall, the historic venue where Martin Luther King Jr received his honorary doctorate, a powerful reminder of the global significance of education.

Corby House continued the experience with an engaging lecture on storytelling, full of lively interactions and idea-sharing. This was followed by a session on influencer culture, where pupils examined how influence shapes modern society and even created their own influencers with plenty of creativity and humour.

Brookfield House rounded off the week with a deep dive into crisis communications, learning how organisations respond when things go wrong and how to communicate clearly under pressure. The day concluded with a fascinating look at film-making, offering insights into how stories are crafted and brought to life on screen.

These three days gave our pupils a valuable taste of university life, opened their eyes to a range of creative pathways, and encouraged them to think ambitiously about their futures. We are incredibly grateful to Dr Kelsey and Newcastle University's School of Arts and Culture for providing such rich, meaningful experiences for our young people.

Supporting Boys Through the Transition to Secondary School

At St Aidan's Catholic Academy, we understand that moving from primary to secondary school is a pivotal moment in a young person's life, especially for boys. That is why we are proud to partner with the award-winning organisation Space North East to bring the Accompaniment Project to life. Thanks to funding from the SHINE Trust, this initiative ensures our pupils feel a strong sense of Belonging, discover Purpose, and develop Aspiration as they begin their secondary journey.

At its heart, the Accompaniment Project is about building positive relationships with trusted male role models and who better than our very own alumni? These familiar faces bring authenticity and relatability, showing our pupils what's possible when they embrace challenges and strive for success.

James, founder and managing director of Space North East has been involved from the early stages, bringing expertise in men's mental health and project management. His vision and commitment have been instrumental in creating a safe, supportive environment where boys can thrive. James now leads the project alongside Liam, who delivers weekly mentoring sessions and whole school assemblies to provide consistent guidance and encouragement during this important transition.

This work reflects key insights from the Centre for Social Justice's Lost Boys report, highlighting the importance of connection and guidance during formative years while nurturing individuality and ambition. It also complements the incredible work Space North East does in our local community, supporting men who face challenges such as depression, loneliness, and anxiety by giving them a space to talk, walk, and move.

Looking ahead to 2026, we are excited to build on these foundations. Our goal is to open doors to new experiences and opportunities for pupils who may benefit most from additional support broadening horizons, nurturing confidence, and helping every boy see what's possible for his future.
